WE NOMINATE

Nine dedicated, hard-working Princeton Citizens who, as this portentous public school year opens, will bear, as members of the Princeton Regional School Board, the major burden of guiding and uniting this polarized community of 25,000-plus souls and the 4,900 school children who are the hope of its future.

Curiously, in an education-oriented municipality, only two of the nine school board members toil in the education vineyard. John Marks, able president of the board, is on the staff of Princeton University and is an acknowledged expert in the affairs of the tinder-box Middle East. William Marvel, equally able vice-president of the school board, is president of the New York-based Education and World Affairs.

Six board members have their expertise in technical or scientific fields. Dr. Robert Bierman and Dr. Henry Powsner are physicians, the former a pediatrician with a large Princeton practice, the latter a radiologist on the staff of Princeton Hospital. Dr. William Z. Abrams, for many years a practicing dentist in Princeton, now is program co-ordinator of the New Jersey State Department of Health's Dental Health Program.

A physicist by training, Winthrop Pike is a member of the technical staff at RCV's David Sarnoff Research Center and Dr. Philip Cruickshank employs his degree in chemistry as a director of research for EMC. Mrs. Evelyn Geddes is an economist and statistician. Member of a prestigious black Princeton family, Mrs. Kathleen Edwards, only member of the board who is herself a product of the Princeton public school system, has been for many years an administrative assistant in civilian personnel at Fort Dix.

Accustomed though all nine are to the demands of volunteer public service, with interests ranging from

Mrs. Geddes' current post as president of the Mercer Area Planned Parenthood Association to Dr. Abrams' service on the board of the Children's Home Society to Dr. Cruickshank's former chairmanship of the Troop Committee for the First Presbyterian Church's Boy Scout Troop 13 to Mrs. Edwards' organization of the successful 1968 "Job Fete" for black and white Princeton youth to Dr. Marvel's three years as Township Committeeman, few realized when they filed petitions for election to the school board the demands that would be made upon time, temper, patience and fortitude.

Only elected by a constituency of parents firmly resolved that their children shall have an education second to none, the board "nine" now find themselves confronted with sharp community divisions on the meaning of excellence in education. And as the town itself is divided, so does the board find division even in its own ranks — roughly on a ratio of 4:2 with three "swinging" members — on key and crucial issues certain to surface as the year moves ahead.

Nonetheless, all nine present a solid phalanx of unity on such issues as drugs, recognizing the tragic urgency of this problem among Princeton youth at all levels on the socioeconomic scale, and affirming their determination as the responsible elected officials charged with youth, to wrestle this hydra-headed monster to extermination.

For having opted to give of their minds, hearts and labors in the cause of the young; for what this community hopes will be their ability to resolve problems without personal vendetta so that youth and adult can move forward together in the cause of education, the nine members of the Princeton Regional School Board are TOWN TOPICS' nominees for

A FORUM FOR ALL
"We Saw Each Other
In a Different Light"

- "There's a free, vital spirit in this town, and there's also conservatism. This tension is creative for Princeton; the danger is, it could lead to chaos," — Alden Dunham.
- "We've got to meet, people to people, outside our own tight little groups," — Rosalind Frisch.
- "We've found out things about each other that enabled us to understand better," — Richard Magee.
- Curriculum should be re-evaluated constantly at the high school and students are qualified to help in this," — Clifford Kuhn.
- "We haven't even scratched the surface," — Ann Johnston.

All these comments were made at or grew out of the extraordinary series of bi-weekly "Open Forum" meetings held this summer so people of all persuasions could talk about Princeton's schools, specifically Princeton High School.

Town Topics' Back to School Issue

These pleasant August days belie the fact that fall and the opening of school are just around the corner with the approach of September. To aid in the transition, TOWN TOPICS presents its annual BACK-TO-SCHOOL Issue containing numerous stories, pictures and features on the educational scene in Princeton, Topics include:

- Original writings in prose and poetry by students in Princeton Schools. A new feature this year.
- Thoughts on the kind of high school Princeton should have in the future from Alden Dunham, a member of the Long Range Planning Committee for Princeton Schools.
- Better communication needed between parents and schools. An interview with Superintendent Philip E. McPherson.
- Former school board member C. Shelby Rooks discusses the impact of Princeton public schools on black pupils.
- Complete back-to-school calendar and home room assignments for all Princeton regional schools.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, September 23, at 8 p.m. in the library of Community Park School. Every body is invited. The range of age and opinion is wide. This particular meeting will be a crucial one. The Forum's regulars — it's an unstructured group without officers, or even really, a formal name — will decide whether or not to continue.

be so arranged that kids wouldn't be invited to the same gathering as their parents — that way people wouldn't be emotionally involved," Richard Magee, also a regular, says. "I'd like to see these Forum meetings continue — not necessarily on a regular basis, but scheduled for times when there are hot issues in the community."

The Forum approach — small, informal groups of people with widely, even wildly, different opinions, talking in low key fashion about their concerns — could be used to clarify many community problems, not just school ones, Dr. Magee believes.

"It's like Union Square and a soapbox," he smiles, "a place where you can say anything."

The Plan. Five Open Forums will hold this summer. They originated with high school students who organized them and planned the topics: Curriculum, Communications, Graduation, and Physical Facilities at Princeton High School.

Steven Margolis, who was graduated from PHS in June, was the organizer. The students wanted an adult on the committee and Mrs. Frisch volunteered.

"We tried to get a cross section of the community," she explains. "For example, I had reservations about the Wednesday Program. I wasn't 'pro' or 'con.' I just had questions. All of us wanted calm, and a low key for the discussion of issues at length and in depth."

"You just can't do that at these school board meetings." People see each other only in one dimension — somebody says something and somebody else says something into a microphone, and his comique applauds and the min-

"LET'S TALK." Philip E. McPherson, Princeton's superintendent of schools, hopes for more direct talks with Princeton residents this year. "I'd like to adopt the spirit of the 'at home' weekend Dr. Abrams held last spring (William Abrams, school board member, when he talked with a wide variety of people who were concerned about schools." More from Princeton's controversial superintendent in story, page 13.

Different Approach. Mrs. Rosalind Frisch, who has attended most meetings and who served as chairman for the most recent one, on August 13, will offer a proposal.

"I'd like to see parent kid group meetings, the way we have in the Forum, but in people's homes. Meetings would use somebody else gets up to speak you know what he's going to say because everybody is labeled one way or another."

At the Forums, there was always room for everyone to speak, to attack, to agree or disagree with no shouting."

Who? Sometimes 30 to 40 people sat around the Community Park library at a Forum meeting, eight or ten teenagers among them. Several high school teachers came and Florence Burke, the PHS principal, was frequently there. Dr. Philip E. McPherson, superintendent, also came, and did several other administrators from time to time.

At the August 13 meeting, however, only about a dozen people showed up. It was charged, at that meeting, that some teens were disappointed by Dr. Magee's announced affiliation with the CARES citizens group, and therefore stayed home. It was suggested later that some teachers may not have felt free to speak with Miss Burke and administrators in attendance.

It was at this meeting, too, that Mrs. Larson Johnson, twice a school board candidate, said she questioned whether the Forums had even scratched the surface of school problems.

But Mrs. Frisch smiles and says maybe other people were afraid NOT to come! She referred to one critic of the school system who left before the end of a first meeting, and she speculated that he left because "he found nothing to attack."

Questions. "I think we really did get below the surface," she continues. "We heard kids and teachers tell us what kind of school they were used to. There should be constant evaluation of the high school curriculum," stated young Kuhn, a 1970 graduate, "and kids are qualified to help. Curriculum should concentrate on today's conflicts: war, race, inflation." "All we can give kids is how to deal with the unknown," stated teacher David Givoli. "We must free them from texts, teachers, schools."

During a Forum on grades it was brought out that Princeton High has no clear grade lines on the morning of a letter grade (A, B, C, D, etc.) or on the 1, 2, 3, 4 "Civics" rating. Different teachers apply different criteria at different times.

A new graduate of the high school expressed her scorn for grades and asked that they be "outlawed." She said they in inhibited creativity and discouraged creativity and were arbitrary.

But it isn't that clear cut," Dr. Magee says. "Maybe some courses should be graded and some not. Maybe there are some kinds of grades we can't do without."

all agree on." At that grading Forum, a fundamental question was raised: "Should students work toward grades or toward an education?"

The Youngs: "We talk about the kids, but we're dealing here with different philosophies, not just with a generation gap. Dr. Magee worries. And yet the young generation, high school age, was the main thrust of concern. Mr. J. Stuart Hunter at the last Forum pointed out that there wasn't enough time at the high school for kids and teachers to just talk. Miss Burke said the high school might try to adjust schedules to allow for this.

Dr. Magee praised the Forum arranged by Mrs. George Freeman, former school board member, on Communications. "This is a very important matter," he said. "Nobody knows where to turn for answers. A kid can be turned off. An adult with a complaint can be turned off if he gets a land-fish answer from the administration."

Alan Dimock, a student, suggested an opinion newspaper at the high school. But should contributors be required to sign their names? Needed here by a faculty advisor. "That's the advantage of a group like the Forum," Dr. Magee points out. "A student can say why can't we... and somebody from the administration is right there to give a direct answer." But one parent remarked on listening, that fear seemed to govern many responses of students and teachers.

Suggestions? Dr. Magee adds that, in his view, a lot of creative suggestions come forward at Forums, and he uses the "house plan" for Princeton High. "It was raised by more than one person, a parent or maybe a kid. It's an answer to the problem of forums. It would help the guidance department to know people, if the school were divided into houses."

Another "creative suggestion" was group counselling. If a group of PHS kids, as diverse by design as the Forums were by good fortune, met with the same guidance counselor for the whole four years, it could be great.

It offers, Dr. Magee suggests, "the potential of kids learning from kids."

Adults can also learn from kids. At the last Forum, Dr. Magee talked about the evening the young Forum organizers spent at his house in a planning conference. "I was surprised. I expected radicals. But they made sense. They obviously wanted a solid education with some flexibility. We need to get more kids and faculty and adults in a proper open forum."

A New Light: "At these meetings," Mrs. Frisch says, "people were seen by other people as he many faced. Kids were seen in a different light. And trying to understand it's a whole new culture to try and understand. I may shed some knowledge on why we all have what we do."

For the future, Dr. Magee is working with Mrs. Johnson to get the minutes of all five Forums in order. They will present these reports to the board, up to be shaped into a form everybody can agree on.

"Then the reports will be given to the school administration to help develop a sense of what the community thinks is important," said Dr. Magee.

Meanwhile, a Hightstown resident learned about the Forum and called Mrs. Burke who put her through to Mrs. Frisch. "Do you think," she asked in desperation, "this Forum idea could help us in Hightstown too?"

DRUG EDUCATION HERE

Teacher Training Planned
 Under a new state law, drug education will this year be come part of the public school curriculum in Princeton and all other communities through out New Jersey.

Precise schedules haven't yet been established for Princeton, but the law says that all teachers of seventh through 12th grade students must participate in eight 90 minute instruction sessions, spaced out between the opening of school and December 31. Classroom instruction for pupils will then begin in the second semester.

The program here is under the direction of Dr. Charles Huchet, director of Special Services; Dr. Constance Veland, co-ordinator of staff education and Dr. Ronald Wilson, psychologist at Princeton High School. Dr. Wilson was Princeton's representative at a three week training session held by the state this summer.

This three-member team is preparing a series of questions for teachers asking what drug problems teachers have already encountered, how much knowledge teachers have about drugs, what teacher attitudes are toward children with drug problems and so on. The fall's efforts will be devoted both to training and to developing curriculum, according to Dr. Veland. She added that in Princeton, it is possible that all teachers, kindergarten through 12th grade, may be involved.

IN THE TOWNSHIP...

Mayor Holds Conference Will Princeton participate in county-wide waste disposal system?

"The Township will never foreclose the opportunity to discuss proposals for regional projects," Mayor John D. Wallace said at his monthly press conference this week. "Some times there are drawbacks to regional proposals, but it's incumbent on us to consider and come up with a decision."

The Mercer County Improvement Authority has asked for municipal representatives on an advisory committee, and Mayor Wallace said he'll announce his nominee shortly. Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley has appointed James Andrews.

In the wake of the Tower at Princeton turmoil, Mayor Wallace has asked for names of citizens who might want to discuss Service and Office Search zoning with Township Committee. John W. Bauman, 611 Mt. Lucas Road, a leader of the Tower opposition, will probably be one of four asked by the Township Planning Board to talk over the question. Mayor Wallace said.

The Open Space Commission will dissolve into a new Conservation Commission under a proposed ordinance to be introduced Tuesday, September 9 by Township Committee. Creation of the new Commission may open the way, Mayor Wallace suggested, for a joint Borough-Township Parks Commission.

TRIALS POSTPONED

For Campus Loiterers, The Borough court trials of eight persons arrested last week in violation of Princeton University's new 8:30 campus curfew have been postponed to the school year.

Borough Judge Theodore T. Tams Jr. has set a September 17 court appearance for Matthew Meyers, 21, Edwards Hall; Richard P. Rutgers, 22, of Hartsdale, N.Y.; and Anton Hens, 24, of Princeton. Scheduled to appear on October 7 are Willie Burlington, 20, 6 Hulsch Street; Jose L. Peco, 24, 12 Edgemoor Street; Kuang Mei, 22, 41 Vandewater; and William Stanton, 24, and Mary Gibson, 28, both of the Graduate School.

A curfew prohibiting persons from congregating on the lawns in front of Nassau Hall after 8:30 p.m. was announced earlier this month by the executive committee of the University Council.

MOTORCYCLE IS STOLEN

From Nini Plymouth. For the second time in a month, thieves have broken into the Nini Plymouth garage on Route 306.

This time, a $1,000 Triumph motorcycle was reported stolen by sales manager Stan Lavin between 10 Sunday night and Monday morning. Police said that a rear window in the repair garage had been broken near the latch. Once inside, the thieves wheeled the cycle out a side door. Nothing else was taken, according to Mr. Lavin.

Earlier this month, using the same route of entry, thieves stole two sport cars from the Nini lot. Both were later recovered. —Continued On Next Page

$250 Suit Taken. A navy blue suit trimmed with a fur collar valued at $250 was reported snatched last week at Nevius Voorhes, 194 Nassau Street.

Police said that two women had been seen looking at the suit shortly before it was discovered missing. One had Afro style hair, they said.

30 Days for Speeding. Victor M. Calucci, 17, of South Road, Pennington, had his license suspended for 30 days last week in Township Court for speeding. Police reported they clocked him at 61 miles an hour in a 25 mile zone.

In other cases, Judge Burton Peskin fined Nancy J. Luther, 32, 62 Lower Harrison, $16 for speeding; Joan Farrell, 39, 8 Panchewick Drive, Princeton Junction, $15 for careless driving; and Bertha E. Daniels, 27, 72 Clay Street, $15, for registering vehicle.

WOMAN HAS CONCUSSION

Following Car Collision. Mrs. Anne M. Manoson, 16, 28 Pine Street, received a concussion and contusions of the head and leg after her car was struck Sunday afternoon at Witherspoon and Wiggins Street. She was treated and later released.

Mrs. Manoson's car, traveling on Wiggins, continued on after the impact to Avalon Place. After sitting through some conflicting reports from eyewitnesses, Sgt. John J. Redlin inked the second driver, Kevin H. Brundage, 33, 111 James Street, Lawrenceville, for failing to stop for a red light. Following the 2:57 p.m. crash, both cars were towed to a Princeton Circle service station on Route 1.

Monday afternoon at 1, a resident of Princeton Kingston Road, Joan M. Attenborough, 40, sustained contusions and abrasions of the elbow when her car was struck on the side at Valley Road and Walnut Lane.

She told police that she tried unsuccessfully to veer to the right when a car came out of Walnut Lane without warning. The collision damaged the entire left side of her convertible.

There were no charges, a claimed the second driver, Robert Cornwell, 18, of 341 Walnut Lane.

STILL MISSING

337 Jaycee Girl Tickets. Three hundred thirty seven of the 941 tickets to the Jaycee Football Classic slated August 8 have still not been recovered.

Most of the 647 recovered have been received through some people in the area who are working with Borough police. Now, the returns have trickled to one at a time. The ticket prices are for $3, $6 and $15 each; the value of those not recovered is $2,208.

A metal wall cabinet in the Thorndike House on John Street, where the Princeton Jaycee Chapter has its ticket offices for the game between the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles was pried open. Some were left stewed on the floor of the office.

BEARING WEDNESDAY

In Narcotics Charge. Timothy Ferguson, 21, 251 John Street, is scheduled to appear in Township court next Wednesday on a charge of possessing narcotics, paraphernalia.

He was arrested in his apartment Friday by police who allegedly discovered the August, like the sand in the hour glass, is beginning to run out, but there's still time for pleasant living.

Additional charges may be lodged against Ferguson pending the outcome of laboratory tests of substances found in his apartment.

MNC AIDS REV. DUFFEY

In Upset Primary Victory. The assistant campaign manager for the Rev. Joseph Duffey has credited volunteers provided by the Princeton-based Movement for a New Congress with playing a vital role in the upset victory of the Rev. Joseph Duffey in last week's Connecticut Democratic Senate primary.

"I think we can trace many of the votes that meant the difference between victory and defeat directly to these young volunteers," commented Tony Pabstia. "In fact, we might not have even been in this race if it hadn't been for MNC this spring."

Mr. Duffey defeated Al phorus J. Danaher, a wealthy Stamford businessman, who had been considered a slight favorite, by about 12,000 votes. Mr. Donahue had won the endorsement of the party at the state convention in June, but both Mr. Duffey and Edward L. Marcus, who ran third in the balloting, received more than 20% of the delegate vote, forcing the first statewide primary in the history of the party in Connecticut.

As soon as the Movement for a New Congress was created in early May, volunteers from the Movement went to Connecticut to help the Duffey campaign organize.

About 70 students spent up to two weeks developing a campaign structure in Hartford, canvassing the state for primary registration, doing advance work and assisting the statewide operation. The students also infused life and spirit into the campaign at a crucial time.

Momentum. The momentum and confidence generated in May picked up sufficiently for Mr. Duffey to garner the support he needed at the June 27 Connecticut Democratic convention to gain a place on the primary ballot.

MNC offices in Connecticut provided volunteers throughout the summer. Last week, close to 100 MNC volunteers from Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and the Movement's national office in Princeton campaigned and performed the traditional election day chores.

For this final thrust, MNC also provided four experienced organizers to assist the Duffey campaign in utilizing the volunteer manpower and checking that all the volunteers had been thoroughly trained.

Among those in Connecticut for election day was one of the Movement's two national coordinators, Professor Henry Bielen of Princeton.

Come - from - Behind Win. "This was an important campaign for us," said Mr. Bielen tonight after a full day of campaigning. "Duffey is an outstanding candidate. He had to come from a long way behind in a short time and we had to work without many of the students who will be available when schools start next month but just haven't been able to work over the summer."

With the amount of well-trained manpower we'll have this fall, Duffey should be Senator Duffey by the night of November 3 and a strong voice for reversing American war policy and reordering national priorities should be sitting in Connecticut's junior Senate seat next January.

Through its more than 400 regional and local chapters across the country, the Movement for a New Congress will be campaigning for between 60 and 70 House and Senate candidates this fall who are clearly superior to their opponents in marginal districts where student support could swing the election.

"Open" School Meetings

Starting in September, the public will be invited to observe the open executive meetings of the Princeton Regional School Board. Time and place will be announced as soon as dates are known, but usually these meetings are held in Room 62, John Witherspoon School.

The first will be Monday, September 21, at 8:15 p.m. It is the usual agenda session that precedes the regular monthly meeting.

The key word in this announcement is "observe." The public will not be invited to comment or to speak. William Evans, board secretary, points out that legally, a board of education doesn't ever have to grant permission to speak if it doesn't want to. The law requires public meetings, but there is no legal "right" to speak at these meetings. Comment from the audience is a privilege which can be granted or withheld under the law, as the board sees fit.

Personnel matters, contract negotiations and grievance proceedings will not be open to the public.

MONTESSORI SCHOOL SET

To Open September 14. Beginning its fourth year, the Children's Manor Montessori Nursery School will resume September 14 in the Research Building at EDS. Two sessions for children ages three to six will run at 8:45 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Directress Mrs. Thomas Chubb, graduate of Drexel Institute of Technology and the Assumption Montessori Training Center at Ravenhill Academy, will be assisted by Mrs. Ann Cywinski and Miss Marcia Roberts.

The Montessori method of teaching places emphasis on the individual child as a developing human being. Maria Montessori, originator of the system, believed that a child from birth to age six has a "highly absorbent mind" and a great capacity for disciplined work and learning.

Further information concerning the method and the school may be obtained from the Mercer County Montessori Society, 41 Breness Avenue, Trenton, or by calling: 883-1541 or 883-0873.

MCCE TO OFFER COURSES

At PHS On Wednesday Nights, Mercer County Community College will again offer a number of college credit courses to be taught at Princeton High School on Wednesday evenings, starting September 16.

The course selection includes: Language and Literature 1, History of Western Civilization 1, American Government, Beginning German, and

News Of The THEATRES

"MIKADO"

Under the Stars, Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" will be given over Labor Day weekend at the Washington Crossing (N.J.) Open Air Theatre.

The beloved classic will be presented in an opening night performance on Friday, September 4 with subsequent performances Saturday, Sunday and Labor Day. Curtain time will be 8:30.

This weekend, the Open Air Theatre is offering Herb Shapiro's Stage Two production of the off Broadway rock musical, "Your Own Thing," based on Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

GARDEN

Woodstock (now playing) is a filmed record of some of the highlights of those three days and nights last August when half a million young Americans decorated upon a farmland in White Lake, N.Y., in search of fun, music and "peace."

Some 120 hours of film has been cut to a three hour show, and, unless you shared the experience at Woodstock, you will find this the most spectacular rock musical ever made, as well as a documentary of much fascination.

The film devotes considerable time to individual members of the audience at Woodstock, interspersing interviews with on stage performances by Joan Baez, Richie Havens, John Sebastian, and many more. Willingly or no, the townspeople were filmed too, even the workman who cleaned up the portable toilets on the festival grounds.

The split screen technique produces some staggering, kaleidoscopic effects reaching a peak when Alvin Lee of Ten Years After whips himself and the audience into a frenzy. Add to that, six-track stereophonic sound.

PRICE

Catch 22 (now playing) Mike Nichols' film version of Joseph Heller's best-selling novel of World War II is close enough to the original to please most readers of the book. Buck Henry (who also co-authored the script of "The Graduate")

IT'S NEW To Us

BROWSING THE TRENDS
At The Tree House. As models tried on clothes for this Saturday's day-long fashion show at the Tree House, Mrs. Kay Ryan assured us, "You can go to any length this year."

Mrs. Ryan, a quick-humored sophisticate with a rather special way with clothes, is the Tree House's manager and interpreter of the fall look. The boutique is located at a Moore Street in Bellows' back yard.

The styles for fall are springy. There's a slight puffball ahead in guessing the length of the skirts, however. "They all rest on the hips this season, so they're a little longer than they look!" Mrs. Ryan cautioned us.

Prize pickings, some of which you'll see during the fashion show, include knit tweed coats that look as though they were handmade on big No. 10 needles. Soft and bulky in softly speckled woods, which you wear with almost anything.

The knit fabrics are used in a great many things. Mrs. Ryan put together a terrific pants outfit—brown knit pants, with an aqua tunic dress and a crisply tailored tweed coat.

BIRTHDAY PARTY: The Tree House boutique on Moore Street will mark its second birthday with an all-day open house, and fashion show this Saturday. Above, modeling some of the clothes from the show are (at left) Mrs. William Sutphin in a tailored mid-coat and pants outfit and Mrs. Joseph Wisniewsky wearing gouchos and a fringed suede vest.

in a brown-and-white herring bone weave.

Vests by Crazy Horse. Vests are another look that's coming up very important: In suede, beaded and long fringed, or, by Crazy Horse, a long vest in a navy and rust weave that you wear with rust pants.

The Tree House has an attractive, mid-length skirt in beige heathered tweed, double-bustled at the front. Wear it with a sleeveless sweater—or a long vest. There are pants of the same tweed, straight cut, that blend nicely with ribbed-sleeve sweaters.

We scanned a pants suit of a combined jumper and slacks in a marvelous glen plaid of grays, greens and rust. There's a matching mid skirt.

The industrial zipper is one of the season's big accents. It flashes down the front of a mid-length jumper that looks very posh with pants. The jumper is a plaid of kelly green with cross bars of yellow and black—so people will see you coming.

Gouchos are big this year. (Prices about $12.) The Tree House carries some very satisfactory designs by Four Corners—in tweeds, or in bold fawn plaid, for instance, to be matched with a solid color sweater.

Winter pants suits feature a crisply tailored mid-coat that has a wide belt inserted through deep tails. There's a deep collar. Wear it with matching pants and a sweater.

Flexible Four-Pieces. In camel color. The Tree House's four-piece outfit is so flexible that it will round out any wardrobe: coat, skirt, pants, and vest—with wetlook accents.

Suede skirts at the Tree House come in beautiful reds, camel, purple and light green, whichever you need. Some are cut with a flare and a wide belt, others skirted at the waist and featuring a dangling gold chain.

Tree House skirts are about $11 to $18 with the suedes at $22 and $24.

To team with the gouchos, pants and skirts, try the new funnel neck blouses, soft as mima cotton, and deeply buttoned on the sleeve and yoke. The western look in white acetate and rayon comes with quilted accents in an amusing take-off on a rodeo shirt. (Both $14)

There is so much to browse through: battle jackets in wide wide beige corduroy; pea jackets in red or navy ($80); a delicious mid-coat in cinnamon wool with a peplum, side buttons and a demure collar ($55); and indistinguishably attractive at-home skirts and culottes by Lane.

Among the Tree House accessories: tooled leather bags from Morocco, gold and silver embroidered shoulder bags from Pakistan, and soft, supple boots, knee high, of course, in leathers and crinkly vinyl.

PONCHOS AND CULOTTES

Are Prime For Girls. Allen's Children's Center on Nassau Street has some sprightly ponchos in windup-pans of color flanked by navy blue, kelly green and white plaid with navy trim. All nicely fringed, and there are matching plaid pants.

The culotte skirt promises to be the great buy this fall, and we saw them in bright plaids, desaturated, and wide buckle at the side front.

Belt bottoms for both boys and girls fall two great, facing counters at Allen's. The girls are wearing the boys' pants, we were told, but the reverse doesn't hold true. You'll see woven stripes and bold prints on the girls' side. The boys' pants include a marvelous thick, wide waist corduroy, as well as plaids and solid colors. School dresses are knits this year. They don't wrinkle and are easy to care for. By Love, for instance, a soft little striped dress with a navy collar.

has retained a sufficient number of the alternately comical, outrageous and blood-curdling episodes.

The squadron briefing scene, in which General Dredco, played by the gargantuan and still formidably talented Orson Welles, is annoyed by the mounting noises the airmen make while leering at the sexy WAC who always accompanies him, has been so cleverly recreated that it is hilarious.

Alon Arkin, who plays Yossarian, the slightly mad anti-conformist and loner who just wants to be grounded and sent home, is superb. Also very front and center is Jon Voight as Milo, the shrewd opportunist who acts up an army "syn-

Other actors who sketch their caricature roles sharply and quickly are: Richard Benjamin as the cheerful cynic, Captain Danby; Anthony Perkins as the boyishly appealing chaplain; scriptwriter Henry as the nasty Lt. Col. Korn; Bob Newhart as Major Major; and Paula Prentiss as Nurse Duckett.

The settings, filmed in Mexico and Rome, contribute to the atmosphere of fantasy required. David Watkins' photography is a thing of beauty. One memorable shot among many is that of the rickety B-29's taking off in an awkward formation looking like wind-battered butterflies.

Airport (now playing). Arthur H. Huxley's best selling novel gets the full treatment in the film version with an all star cast that includes Burt Lancaster, Dean Martin, Jean Seberg, Jacqueline Bisset, Van Heflin, Maureen Stapleton and even Helen Hayes.

It is just so enjoyable as a movie that the jingling box offices all over the country prove that a "G"-rated film can make it.

The Todd AO cameras swoop all over the large airport, the major setting, as well as to houses and other locales nearby, soaking out a passel of characters that seem large enough to populate "War and Peace."

There are wonderful, unusual color combinations in the blended stripes. Made by Donmoor and Bolony, all the polos are machine washable.

Wetlook for the school set is seen in some very attractive jackets - bright red with a Mao collar and a sherpa lining ($50) or camel-color with fur at the edge of the hood, the neckline and at the hem.

Allen's has its usual complete stock of gym suits for the Regional Schools, and also smocks for young artists and craftsmen.

New this year, for the benefit of young mothers, is the Health-Tex line of infants and pre-schoolers' wear - knits and corduroys.

And as always, Allen's has an impressive selection of heavy jackets. Some are hooded, others have the suede look. They come in corduroys, wools, nylon quilting. The new styles are great and worth buying early while the selection is available. Prices are $37.50 to $56. The jackets are so well made that they last through several wearers' use.

Gee, Reggie, do you mean those prime ribs that

Say, Sylvester, after I finish painting this wall, don't

What Kind of High School Does Princeton Need?

"A good hard look at the Princeton High School program has got to come first," says a physical facilities' Alden Dunham of the schools' Long Range Planning Committee told the summer Open Forum last Wednesday evening.

But he also said, "That high school is just too damn crowded, overcrowding and poor design are the basic problems." And Princeton's Florence Burke, who was a dissent, mood in firm a agreement.

This fall, the Long Range Committee will lay out the issues in an interim report which Mr. Dunham warns may be "punchy, irritating and controversial."

This report will be the agenda for small discussions around town, not the subject of a giant mass meeting. "We hope," Mr. Dunham said, "these small gatherings will bring a polarized community together in rational discussion of school issues."

The chairman of the 15 member planning group, William Sciden, and Mr. Dunham emphasized repeatedly Wednesday that he was speaking solely for himself and not for his colleagues.

Diversity is Strength. "The vitality of this town and its high school is pluralism," Mr. Dunham insisted. "Harassed kids, with a terrific drive for career success, in intellectual kids with a totally different life style, black kids, youngsters from Italian families—all of them need to be together in a high school where they have a chance to operate freely, without confusion and the tension that comes from rubbing elbows all the time."

"There's no free space now," if a far out teacher wants to let his kids go on some project, they're automatically in somebody else's way.

"In that building you know [WEDDING] if a whole class goes, let's say to Met after, or off on some trip. Take 300 kids out of the building and immediately tenement relieves."

(When the sending districts depart) these 300 kids will indeed leave the building—taking half a million dollars of tuition money out of Princeton with them.)

Mr. Dunham has talked with all high school departments and at length with Miss Burke's Options.

Negatively, as a start, nobody will buy the high school. The land, of course, is valuable. The building is the town's most charming Gothic white elephant Mrs. Norman French, who chaired the Forum suggested it could be a vocational high school.

Alden Dunham

• Build a new building for an estimated $7.12 million. Where? The Foulert tract on Cherry Hill Road, marked on the Township map for a school, may be too remote, Mr. Dunham suggested.

• Renovate the present building for $3.5 million. But where do you store the students for the full year renovation would take?

• Divide grades 6-12, for three years of high school instead of four.

• Operate year-round with three out of four groups of students in school at any given time.

• Tie into a single campus the present high school, John Witherspoon School and some Westminster Choir College facilities, wiping out Walnut Lane. Johnson Park could be expanded to take up the elementary school slack.

"Walnut Lane could be used for track," Miss Burke commented with a smile.)

• Use the community facilities. "We assume kids must be in a school building," Mr. Dunham said, "but even now, lots are elsewhere: in stores, under vocational training, in classes on the University campus."

Outside Learning. "We're definitely trying to let students leave the building," Miss Burke said. "About 125 Trade and Industry students are excused from 11:30, the senior Business Education students are gone in the afternoon on jobs in town, the SICKED program for black students will take 50 to the Youth Center."

Miss Burke and students this fall will find more free elbow room in another way. The Student Lounge is being moved from an outbuilding to the room across from the cafeteria. All students now have longer, 45-minute lunches instead of the former cramped 32-minute lunch, and with the new lounge, they'll have more space as well as time in mid-day.

She told the Forum that this year for the first time, the high school will offer single-semester courses in various English and history subjects. Mrs. J. Stuart Hunter had proposed a four-semester year for kids who wanted to hurry it up.

Miss Burke also suggested that all first-year languages be in one place for eighth, ninth and tenth grade students together. This would eliminate "duplication of services," she said.

The principle recorded her opposition to a "staggered" day, in which some students would come at 8, others at 11, and so on. "Then all I you've got is a factory," she stated.

Mr. Dunham underscored his support of the "comprehensive" school designed for all kinds of young people and all kinds of courses. He expressed concern that sending students off to special things like the auditing of classes at the University or vocational classes in Trenton might alarm the school.

Room! Room! Always, the discussion swung back to space. "Whatever happened to that crawl space where we used to store English books?" asked Mrs. E. H. Thomas of the guidance department.

"It's a locker room for football equipment," Miss Burke replied. "And we store equipment in the girls' shower room, too. It's so hard the girls refuse to take showers there."

"... and let's not even talk about the girls' locker room!" Mr. Dunham exclaimed.

"Appalling," agreed Miss Burke.

Mini-grants Broaden, Deepen Classroom Life

Princeton's schools received more State Mini-grants last year than any other public school system in New Jersey — eight, out of the 100 awarded.

These grants of $1,000 or less, are for one year only. They are awarded by the state for imagination and innovation in teaching, and are chiefly used to buy equipment. Princeton teachers are imaginative, even if they don't apply for or receive mini-grants.

Grants for the coming year haven't been announced yet by the state. These are the ones from 1969-70.

Advanced Physics Experiments: Equipment for experiments in Princeton High's advanced physics course. Teacher: Henry G. Munson.

"Communists Helpers" Film. Princeton High students in the Mass Media class helped Riverside second graders make animated films on the second grade study and called "Communists Helpers." Teachers: Lawrence A. Manser, PHS, and Louis Cicchini, Riverside.

High School Writers, Middle School Readers: High school students with reading-writing problems, were paid to produce material in writing and on tapes, to be used by young Middle School students who also were having reading problems. Teacher: Mrs. Maroon C. Kimberly, Middle School.

"Learning Stations" In a but, open-space classroom, four "learning stations" give a team of three fifth-grade teachers a chance to work on a more individual basis with small groups of children. Teachers: Mrs. Rosemarie Hausdorfer, Mrs. Helen Valley, Miss Sue Jenkins.

"Pendulums" Purchase of material for student experiments in physics, for fifth grade and multi-grade at John Witherspoon School. Teacher: Mrs. Kathleen Johnson.

Teaching Techniques: How to use inquiry and improvisational techniques, to make students and teachers more creative and aware. The workshop consisted of 15 teachers and high school students. Teacher: Douglas Coulter.

Movable Art Room: Four rolling-folding tables and benches now provide portable working art space for 265 first-second graders at John Witherspoon. Teacher: Mrs. Margaret Lawton.

"Workshop '71" To help 35 PHS students grow in self-understanding and an awareness of themselves and their environment, grant funds going for museum fees, speakers, books and equipment. Teacher: Mrs. Miriam Rangel.

Beginning Spanish I, all for three credits and running from 7:00 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. Also, Basic Data Processing Systems will be taught for four credits; time for this course will be from 6:30 to 10:15 p.m.

Registration will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, September 9, at Princeton High School. Tuition is $12 per credit for Mercer County residents. There is also a $2 fee per course. Additional information may be obtained by contacting the Office of Evening and Extension Operations, 161 West State Street, Trenton or by calling 386-9241.

SUBSCRIPTIONS SOUGHT

In All Scholarship Drive: A concentrated effort to raise more funds than ever before for the Princeton High School PTA Scholarship Fund during the October magazine drive is being organized by Mrs. William F. Besser, fund-raising chairman, and Mrs. Raymond F. Male, magazine drive chairman.

High school students themselves will be soliciting the community for magazine subscriptions, both new and renewals, from October 3 through 16. A class prize will be given and $25 will be awarded to the student who fills the most subscription orders.

Potential subscribers have a choice of among more than 100 different magazines, and special subscription offers are featured. Between an and 50 per cent of the proceeds of each subscription is retained for PTA scholarships. For example, it is estimated that if everyone in the Princeton area renewed their pre-owl subscriptions to three of the top leading national magazines through the PTA magazine drive, about $20,000 would become available for scholarships.

Mrs. Besser urged readers who already subscribe to magazines to renew them through the PTA. Although the students will be soliciting subscriptions in October, magazines also may be ordered through the high school office. Mrs. D.J. Blattner, 924-2091.

boys and girls, for $1.50.

The leather look comes in a school notebook ensemble these days — a large three-ring notebook, a small 11x14 theme book and a pocket size notebook, all for $2.79.

There are clipboard notebooks this year, with a pocket slit inside the brass cornered front cover, and a sturdy back to the clipboard on the facing side. ($1.75 and $2.15)

For the color minded, Hinkson's has green notebooks with matching green paper, or blue with blue paper, red with pink paper and even yellow with yellow paper. All very young and fun. The size is about 9x6 and the cost is $1.20.

We noticed thick, five-subject notebooks, too, containing 20 sheets of papers, ring holes, and plastic index tabs. The backs are a heavy cardboard ($1.85)

The variety of notebooks is almost endless: speckle backed, hard cover theme books (70 cents and 85 cents) with softly tinted green paper 1.0 "Holder Folders" (.69 cents) with eight pockets for filing school papers for pre-exam reviews.

Adjustable Book Covers

Hinkson's has adjustable book covers of flexible vinyl (about 35 cents), index tabs — all alphabetical, by month, or by number — and rulers by the score. Three-sided, or four-sided, or with stencil letter inserts.

We found book straps, chemistry stencils, protractors, all under $1; and a pocket size pencil sharpener that looks like the crank handle type on the schoolroom wall.

Pencil sets come in plastic zip cases in some instances, or mud prints, or black and white stripes. They are equipped with various combinations of rulers, pencils, crayons and walnut pockets ($1 to $2).

And to insert in notebooks, Hinkson's has found an astonishing variety of wide and narrow ruled papers, music sheets, abbreviated dictionaries in French and Italian, as well as 8x5 and 12 column data sheets for young scientists, and even biology and botany papers with a heavy ring content. All 25 cents to $1.

'Let's Talk About Learning and Education,' Says Dr. McPherson

"I'd like to talk with the people in Princeton about learning and education in general — we have more in common and more to share than you might think."

Philip E. McPherson, superintendent of Princeton's public schools, said in a back-to-school interview this week this his "big pitch" this fall will be to make himself more available to more people.

Details will be announced later, he said. But there may be informal coffees, special hours set aside for telephone calls, "open house" hours along the lines established this spring by Mayor John D. Wallace of the Township.

"For example, not long ago I discussed grades with some parents," he continued. "We had a good talk although we disagreed, and we exchanged ideas without anger on either side."

"The parents talked about the importance of competition and constantly being tested, as preparation for a competitive world. I have a slightly different view of the way you tell kids how they're doing. So we exchanged ideas and I think we can go on from there."

Let's Talk. Confronted with opposition from some members of the Princeton Regional Board of Education and from parts of the community as well, Dr. McPherson said "I want to keep a dialogue going with board and townspeople so we can understand what we disagree on."

The superintendent believes that "despite our concern with very serious problems, the Princeton school system is a fine system. It's been improving, and the crises we've been through haven't affected the desire of the faculty to do more with the kids than they ever have before."

"The ways of the system

sometimes seem unconventional, and therefore questionable to a lot of people," he explained, "but that has to do with teachers' autonomy in making decisions."

In Princeton's schools, prin-

McPherson Offered Post?

Superintendent Philip E. McPherson has reportedly been offered the position of Executive Assistant to the new United States Commissioner of Education in Washington, D.C.

The superintendent would not comment on the report except to say that he was not planning to leave Princeton.

"I've committed myself to the school system here," he said. "I made that commitment clear to the board when the board granted me tenure and I'm still holding to that commitment."

cipals and teachers have a free-way in working out what they believe to be better ways of teaching. The superintendent cited the new partner-teach arrangement planned for the fall by Dr. Wesley Johns, principal of John Witherspoon School, for a second year class.

Teachers need to be able to do new things freely without feeling that everything must be decided by a higher bureaucracy — the superintendent or board. We'd pay a disaster price in creativity if the board or the superintendent decided to hold principals in."

More Board Involvement Members of the school board, however, have expressed a desire to become more involved with what the school vocabulary always calls "decision making." Some board members are saying they would like a new committee set up so the board can get its teeth into — Continued on Next Page

GENERAL ALARM SOUNDS

For Dormitory, Office Fires. Two general alarms were sounded for fires Tuesday, one in an annex of the Princeton Inn Dormitory and another in a doctors' suite in the Medical Arts Building on Witherspoon Street. Neither blaze was extensive.

Veteran fireman George B. Rollings Sr., 76, of 16 Pelham Street, was taken to Princeton Hospital after he collapsed while answering a 9:06 a.m. fire at the dormitory on Alexander Street. After receiving oxygen at the scene from the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, he was taken to the hospital and admitted for observation of high blood pressure and headaches.

A witness said that Mr. Rollings said just gotten off his first truck when he collapsed. A retired Princeton University mechanic, he has been a member of Hook & Ladder Company for more than 50 years.

The fire at the dormitory was confined to one of two oil burners in the basement. "There was no actual fire outside the burner," said Ptl. David Potts, who inspected the equipment after the fire. According to one of the men on duty in the building, oil to the burner somehow backed up and ignited by itself.

The building, the former employees' annex at the Inn, had just been repaired and refurbished for its use as a dormitory. "Early indications are that there is not too much damage from smoke, but I don't know what damage has been done to the heating system," commented John P. Moran, general manager for the University.

FIRE VISITS COLLEGE INN: A backed-up oil burner that ignited was blamed for the Tuesday morning fire at the annex building of the Princeton College Inn. Blaze caused a small amount of smoke and heat damage. Story this page.

5:14 Tuesday morning, an alarm was sounded for a fire in the office suite of Dr. Charles Place and Dr. James Varney in the Medical Arts Building.

"There was smoke and heat damage throughout the whole suite and the doctors' laboratory was burned," said Fire Chief William Hussey. An overheated hotplate was believed to have caused the fire, although Chief Hussey added: "There were several electrical appliances in the office and it's hard to put your finger on just what started it."

No one was injured. John Kaufman, executive vice-president of the Princeton Hospital, which the medical arts offices serve, complimented the fire department for its speed in getting to the early morning fire.

Wintry Thoughts for a Summer Afternoon

Quiz for a hot August afternoon. What place in New Jersey holds the record for the heaviest single snowfall? Was it High Point? Newark Airport? Flemington? Atlantic City? In what year was it recorded? 1888? 1915? 1947? 1892?

If you skipped the suggested answers and furnished your own, there's a possibility that you're right. The heaviest snowfall ever recorded in New Jersey was 34 inches at Cape May on Feb. 13-14 1899.

This is one of the interesting facts gleaned from an interview with Donald V. Dunlap, Weather Bureau state climatologist for the federal Environmental Science Service Administration who is assigned to Rutgers University's Department of Meteorology.

Dunlap is the author of a recent bulletin, "The Climate of the Northeast—Probabilities of Extreme Snowfalls and Snow Depths." This contains information from some 120 weather stations in the 12 states joined to New Jersey study with the aid of federal funds appropriated for the aid of the support of regional Northeastern States from search in agriculture and related fields. The agricultural experiment Dunlap's primary assign-

Plenty at Pinkham Notch, Pinkham Notch, N. H. takes a commanding regional lead in expectation of snow depth, with 52.6 inches to be expected every other year and 101.5 inches once a century. Greenville, Maine, comes in a close second with 37.1 and 96.0 inches respectively. Bennett's Bridge doesn't hold its snow very well—its figures are 31.0 and 62.1.

Dunlap has been a student of New Jersey's climate ever since he came to Rutgers to study for his master's degree in 1961. The regional bulletin is in a sense an outgrowth of his thesis which earned him the degree in 1963.

"I'M LEARNING ENGLISH"

In Pilot Program. Quietly, informally, shyly at first but less so now, five Italian-speaking Princeton housewives gather twice a week in a basement room of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church to learn English.

Their teacher is Mrs. Liane Cahn, 486 Ewing, who volunteered as teacher at the request of the Princeton Italian School system. She has taught English at the YWCA for 12 years.

The class is a pilot, and it has been deliberately kept small. The project may be expanded this fall, but if it is, there will simply be more small, quiet, informal groups of Italian-speaking women learning English.

"For a long time, many Princeton teachers have been searching for ways to make Italian-speaking families, mothers in particular, feel closer to the community," explains Dr. Charles Huchet, director of Special Services for the schools.

"Because of language and cultural barriers, Italian families are even more difficult to reach than black families," he continues. "The children have real trouble adjusting to what is essentially a foreign culture — adolescent boys have this difficulty in particular."

Constant Arrivals. A constant flow of Italian families emigrates from Italy to Princeton, especially from the areas of Campobasso and Ischia. Frequently, they bring children of school age who cannot speak English.

This fall, for example, there will be 11 children from Italian families out of the 45 who will enter four-year old pre-kindergarten. Not all, of course, are brand-new to the country, but many come from homes where English is never spoken.

Older children learn English in special classes in Princeton's public schools. Through these classes and the day-to-day book and play contact with English-speaking children, they learn English, too. Fathers pick up the language on the job.

"But the mothers do not. And in any family, it is usually the mother who is the family's liaison with the school."

How to Begin? The classes in St. Paul's started in early July. There have been no drop outs.

It all began only two months ago, from a meeting attended by Dr. Huchet; Mrs. Doris Peskin, who teaches English for the foreign-born at Princeton High; Mrs. Jane Brooks, a school social worker and Miss Iride De Luca, who had been visiting Italian families with Mrs. Brooks and acting as interpreter.

What about our kids who don't hear English at home? That was the key question. And next, can we find someone who speaks Italian, who could be a link?

The link turned out to be young Ciro Baldino, a Princeton High student in Mrs. Peskin's class. His two older brothers had learned English last year from Mrs. Cahn, but his mother still had not been exposed to the language.

Classroom in Church. Everyone agreed that it would be pleasant, in a strange land, to gather in a warm and familiar place like the church, instead of in a school or a YWCA. Father Ranieri of St. Paul's was delighted to offer the classroom. Mrs. Baldino was the first to come, and soon, one after another, there were five.

"We use a book called 'English Through Pictures,' with a small kernel of vocabulary," Mrs. Cahn explains. "Phrases like 'I went to the supermarket and I bought bread, meat and lettuce' or 'This is my right hand.' I find, too, that after only eight lessons or so I can Tangibles, like the days of the week and counting, are helpful learning aids. Especially because in English, all the days end in "day," which has a counterpart in the Italian language.

Some women prefer to see men's written down, and Mr. Calm has a list including items like "All the stuff that came from Italy."

Lessons from TV. One day in public, wrote down names of the television shows they watched. Mr. Calm set up a "Tell The Truth" show, with even one playing role.

To women who may feel disoriented, two hours a week each much time to devote to learning a language. Mrs. Calm has a message: "Today were doing something we couldn't do last week," and "his is a matter of progress spurs them on."

The women also praise Mrs. Calm for what she calls "my in-age Italian."

The next event for the class is a film of activities in the John Witherspoon School made by the school's assistant principal, Philip J. Calm. It will be shown with narration, and afterwards the mothers will have a chance to talk about the film.

"We hope we can use their observation to learn English to help the mother more into life at the school," Dr. Huns says.

The new AFS program for the Middle School would like to have Italian mothers or fathers for the $4,000 a year jobs. Dr. Huns says, "We have made six ten contacts."

He has completed a year with a Swiss family, attending school in Aiderhof, Switzerland. While there, he played in the town band and learned fluent German. Mr. Latz will be a freshman this fall at Haverford College.

The Junior Committee of AFS at Princeton High and Princeton Day schools will sponsor the International Supper. Young people interested in attending should register with Douglas Coulter at PHS or Mrs. Joan Baker at Princeton Day School.

Where does one begin in this exciting and confusing subject: "The Rising Generation"? Much has been written both in anger and in understanding by experts far more adept than I. What I would like to do is to try to state the issues on which many youths take strong stands. Hopefully, this will allow adults and teens alike some basis for discussion whether or not either group fully agrees with my interpretations.

The first battle is fought, I think, on the issue of hypocrisy. It may be part of the fabric of teenagers to war on this front because we adults tend to become so used to hypocrisy that it doesn't bother us anymore.

I refer to the distance between our pious mouthings of the Declaration of Independence each July 4 which says "we hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights — that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness . . ." and the reality of a society that continues to make second class citizens and worse of Blacks, Indians, Mexican-Americans etc.; to the distance between "Equal Justice under Law" which adorns the Supreme Court building in Washington and the reality that poor people, particularly Black or Puerto-Rican, do not get equal protection and, rather, get more local harassment and less legal protection than middle class or upper class people. The old adage that "It's not what you know but who you know" still applies.

I refer also to the distance between advocates of "law and order" and "change through due process" and their acceptance of an undeclared war in Southeast Asia; to the utter unresponsiveness of both major political parties in 1968 when party hacks proved that the parties would not respond to public pressure even when administered within the system . . . a point made by the Democratic Party in 1964.

I submit that it isn't that the kids don't know the principles of America well enough, but that they know them all too well. Because the country falls so far short, they reject the notions of blind patriotism and seek another solution. Youth has always attacked hypocrisy; but its tolerance is less now than before.

Secondly, the battle has its front on a related issue: traditionalism. Often I hear defenses made simply on the basis of "That's the way we've always done it." I submit that that reason is no longer sufficient.

This objection applies to the field of sex ethics in which the kids are simply not going to delay gratification until marriage because of social or religious convention; to the "assembly-line" view of education: "you go to high school then college then grad school don't ask why" approach; to the American tendency to equate more with better; to our stratified social system which we defend as if it were the only possible option; to our enlarged bureaucracy and our reluctance for institutional reform.

Youth today is impatient of bureaucratic delay and inaction, institutionalized racism and unconcern. And they won't play the game anymore: they won't accept legislative logrolling, political appointments of people less than competent for the job and the other such malpractices to which many of us cast little outrage.

Thirdly, they are concerned with the question of meaning: they are searching to believe in and become involved with something that has meaning and relevance, something demanding enough to command allegiance and to get all wrapped up in. These causes seemingly do not exist in the orthodox structures of society, church or home.

The retort: "What have they done to make society better?" is a weak defense against these comments. Applied to the adult world, we can't answer the question, either. Maybe the energy would be better spent in curing the ills rather than arguing over who ought to notice them.

I think that it is the frustration of these three larger thrusts, coupled with personal, individual factors, which causes some teenagers to feel worthless, sometimes to become hung-up on drugs — particularly heroin — or to become alienated so completely that they actively seek to overthrow this social system.

John F. Kennedy said, "If we make peaceful revolution impossible; we make violent revolution inevitable." I submit that violent revolution can be directed outwardly against the social system: i.e. Black Panthers, SDS, etc., or it can be directed inwardly against oneself if one has been so trained, but that no matter which direction it takes, it is still destruction and we still must take some responsibility for it.

One word to parents: Please listen to what your kids are trying to tell you, but maintain your identity as an adult. Parents who try to be teenagers make matters worse; parents who refuse to listen become wardens. But in times of such fundamental value conflict, it is more important than ever for parents not to forget their responsibilities: to establish realistic limits; to deal rationally with questions of values, to help improve this country and to temper discipline with love and warmth.

This generation of young Americans may become the most humanly productive in our history if we give it a good foundation and the freedom to be creative in dealing with old problems. Perhaps it will have to be the most productive generation or it may be the last generation of Americans.

How Do Princeton's Schools Affect Black Kids?

What is the impact of the Princeton public schools on black boys and girls?

That was the original question asked in 1969 by the Rev. C. Shelby Rooks when he was a member of the Princeton Regional School Board.

C. Shelby Rooks

It hasn't been answered yet, but some 15 teachers and members of the Princeton community have spent the last nine months asking questions of their own and will be searching out possible answers for perhaps years to come.

"We weren't sure what questions should be asked first," observes Charles Huchel, the schools' director of Special Services, "but the data on the kids showed us some questions."

- For example — one high school math teacher asks, "Why are there so few black students in advanced math?"
- If the percentage of black boys who participate in after school sports plunges from 35% in sixth grade down to, say, 10% in eighth grade — why?
- Do more black pupils than white have reading deficiencies? why?
- How many black youngsters are referred to Special Services? for what are they referred?
- Many fascinating questions lead to the surface. Data show, for instance, that both black and white students are better in reading than in math. Why?

of Princeton for at least three years. The second group is a random sample of eighth grade white youngsters.

"Dr. Rooks' original idea was to investigate elementary school kids, but we think we've kept to the spirit of his question even though we've shifted the age range," Dr. Huchel states.

"We chose eighth graders because there's more data on children the farther along they are in school and because kids that age are mature enough to talk with us if we decide to staff, sees the sensitive data in Special Services records.

The Black Impact group looks over basic descriptive information on kids in both the eighth grade groups; grades, scores on standardized tests, teacher comments, progress in reading and math. ("Incidentally, as a side benefit — this study may lead to a whole revaluation of our record keeping system!" Dr. Huchel says.)

Most of the work has been done as a project in the Wednesday Program, although a subcommittee on the interaction between teachers and black students has worked out side school hours on members' own time.

The committee consists of Middle School and high school teachers, some of them black, (no elementary school teachers volunteered), psychologists and social workers from Special Services and residents of the community.

More People Needed: So far, the only black adults participating have been from the school staff, although Dr. Huchel and the committee would like community members, too. In fact, he would like very much to have more people: elementary school teachers, for example, and some black students.

"We think it's important that we ourselves are doing this work and not some outside agency," Dr. Huchel says.

At first, the schools approached Educational Testing Service, and the professionals there helped Black Impact to sort out ways of approaching the problem.

"But we wanted this to be Princeton's thing," Dr. Huchel emphasized. "When you do a study yourself, you have a commitment and a kind of investment. You learn so much! Our own people look at some of the data and ask 'Hey! Why is this happening in Princeton!' and that's important."

Work Together for Change. Beyond this is a delicate point — an outside organization might well point the finger of blame, issue a stern indictment, make people very defensive and do more harm than good.

"This isn't the way to improve," Dr. Huchel shakes his head. "We want to get an idea of what's happening, then meet with some teachers and ask them how THEY see what we see."

"Getting teachers to engage in problem-solving WITH us is more likely than anything else to bring about change."

THE WHOLE WORLD

The whole world is flying apart. Just when you've got it all straightened out, something new comes along. They had this big meeting outside and Glen, the chairman, kept on saying, "This body will come to order" or "Will you please sit down and become a part of this body?" and using the word "body" very frequently. That was one of the notable things about the meeting. The other notable thing about the meeting was that it was very hot, and they kept on making all these resolutions and amendments and points of order. Being awfully apathetic, I of course could not attend, and also I didn't want to attend because I don't like meetings and I know it would be a waste of time. But I couldn't think of anything else to do, and all my friends were there so I went for a while. You get sort of lonely when all your friends get caught up in some big political issue and leave you standing there looking for someone to talk to.

But not for long. Because the ol' revolution is upon us. The ol' revolution. The People's Army down at IDA were besieging one of the Defense Department's fortresses. Go down there and talk to them. Pretty soon you start saying, "Right on!" and "Power to the people," start believing in all the strategy discussions, and thinking how great all the participatory democracy stuff is. I was there a lot. Somebody says "Let's clean this place up," so everybody picked up brooms and started sweeping. Then you start dreaming about the perfect anarchistic state. I thought of an idea. I figured that everybody, all the guys who were at Woodstock and Washington, and everyone who wanted a revolution, should go to Maine and just settle down there to live.

It was fun to sit around with all the guys on the lawn of IDA. Political rallies always get me carried away. The people are always unified behind a single cause and I like being part of the group. I don't really care at all about IDA. I was just down there for the fun of it. All the dedicated revolutionaries would get mad at me when I said that. But what's the point of the revolution if you don't get to have fun? What happened to the theory about caring about your next door neighbor and not worrying about what's going on half way around the world? How can you help someone starving in Biafra if you are mean to your friends? Besides, if everyone was good to their neighbors, no one would be Vietnam actually shooting the guns. Besides, I'm having enough trouble keeping everything straight right here without worrying about other places. So that is why I am apathetic.

— Ronnie Lavine '70

ABOUT BIAFRA

In Biafra people die because of hungry and sick. And if the enemies sees a woman going to the hospital to born a child they will cut her stomach with a knife and kill the baby. And every day they come with planes and drop bombs and the bombs kill many people. And every day they drops bombs every body must die. They kill our soldiers many and every 12 years boy must be a soldier. There is a little boy they cut off his chin.

And that's all I can remember when I was there I saw.

HOW MY DOG DIED

My dog was in a bad fight and he was gone about four days. When he came back he was leaning on one side walking; fleas ate two holes in him. He lived for a little while. He died under a tree on Monday day.

A THUNDER STORM

It was a frosty morning on January 10, 1995. The place was Princeton, New Jersey. The sky looked quiet and misty. Later that morning there would be the biggest storm since December 16, 1972. The weather stations in the Manned Orbiting Laboratory, which orbits Earth, had no idea of the storm. Then, at eleven o'clock in the morning, the people of Princeton (which was the temporary capital of the United States because an atomic bomb had destroyed all of Washington, D.C.) were worried because they had no warning of a storm.

They put up their storm shelters and hoped for the best. Immediately, then the sky was dark and quiet. People tried to call the experts of the weather stations to see the storm. Somehow they couldn't communicate. The city blocked off from the rest of the world. Then it started: first came snow, then lightning. It seemed like it would never stop. In the storm you couldn't see anything. There were a lot of electric car accidents. People were trapped in the snow. Many houses were cut off. Fire wouldn't stop even in the rain and snow. Many people froze to death in the streets. Food and water supplies were cut off. People got lost. The storm raged for 10 days straight.

Then, like a flash it all stopped. Meanwhile, during the storm there was an atomic war. All human cities were cut off. People for Princeton. The reports of the storm came in rapidly. It was estimated that 8,000,000 people had died. Millions of houses were burned and buildings caved in.

The people that were left in Princeton decided to do something about it. They began to work immediately. Before the turn of the century they had leaders in the streets, an electronic forcefield that could control the weather and keep radiation out.

That was the last sentence in the newspaper that I read in the year 2750!

— David Sheffer

BLACK MEANS TO ME

What I am proud of is me, my color and the people my color. Black is beautiful. Black will always be beautiful.

The way I am putting this it seems like I have a narrow mind but being black is my specialty. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X, Black Panthers, etc. I'm all proud of because for once in black history they stood up and said, "We want our equal freedom and jobs, and homes!"

That's what I'm real proud of because most of them weren't afraid to die for what's right. Black is a color of a dark lonely thing, not a person exactly but a lonely animal in a world where he was born and his mother and father dead and him having to live in a dark black world blocked off of everything. A color which if you mix with white will give gray.

Black to me means a lot more than this little composition but it has said something in my heart if it has said anything to you.

Late at night when there is no sound the edges of your room seem a little grey and a transparent plastic cushion stuffs your head and eyes holding them open with dry mouth you prepare for bed slowly with a liquor walk and even lying down your back does not succumb to the mattress until the crazy catwoman calls her cats from the barked blackness below by the door until the door shuts

THE STRIKE IMPRESSIONS

I remember baking bread the night of Nixon's announcement of troop infiltration into Cambodia and yawning at the thought of his speech.

I remember reading the morning paper and going to school to be confronted by mass resentment and horror of his action.
I remember signing a petition condemning the invasion and the hundreds of signatures which followed.

I remember wearing a World War II army jacket plastered with fist buttons and a "solidarity in Vietnam" button with the Viet Cong flag on the back.
I remember cutting a bolt of red material for strike armbands and distributing them around the school.

I remember sitting in Miss Burke's workshop with fifteen others for four hours as we discussed plans for a high school strike.

I remember Miss Burke and Mr. Soda opening the door, pleading with us to hurry and then running out.

I remember distributing "marshall" buttons and leaflets on the field outside the boys' gym and directing students to their places.

I remember counting 200 people in my section and vowing as another marshall counted 250.

I remember asking teachers to join the assembly and hearing one of them rudely suggest I become an obedient student and shut up.

I remember seeing a huge mouth which seemed to be perpetually open as it took control of the microphone and, it seemed,
the whole world.

I remember hearing countless voices repeating, repeating.

I remember young faces, indifferent, enraged, anticipating, shouting, victory and defeat.

I remember an egg flying through the air to hit a friend on the cheek and her tears of pain.

I remember the cafeteria with its swirl of bodies, and sitting at a table trembling with the cold, with emotion and some fear.

I remember walking into the English office and being hit with the smell of spray paint as it was applied to T shirt and walls.

I remember a friend mumbling "all power to the following people" and listing
the strike committee.

I remember shouting at two members of the new "arbitrarily" formed strike committee and watching their cold faces wax me in quiet disbelief.

I remember tearing up my bedsheet to make Princeton High School liberation flags and then carrying them to the Institute for Defense Analysis.

I remember reaching for coffee at 9:00
in the morning as I watched both the University liberation flag and that of the high school being hoisted on to the antenna of IDA.

I remember watching more young faces
as they climbed onto the roof of IDA and

When I approach the seer,
It is with coiling and uncoiling fear,
With fear,
That sensual fear
Which pursues a vision as it reaches night.

Among the shadows,
The cobra waits in a cool wicker basket.
The snake charmer returns.
With disquietude,
I have watched the melodious way
of the snake charmer.

I, susceptible now, await him.
In a strange dizziness,
walking,
When the fumes of the city
are vibrant.

When stores
bounce into vision
as resting birds,
When an orange leaves bright
in the gutter.

A face seems his face, and Dizziness turns to agitation.
I have brushed his hand resting on restaurant tables.
I have questioned the motion of all limbs.
I have met his glance in subways,
by roadways.
And with glances, I have asked for meetings never made.

— Janet Breckonridge '71

I sang protest songs.
I remember seeing those faces freeze as they heard the police were coming to make arrests.

I remember the ladder being lowered just as the police were coming over the roof from the other side of the building and laughing as I saw their guns and billy clubs.

I remember the hoarse blurt of a negative phone telling us to move to the steps of the building and link arms, keeping our elbows down.

I remember applauding the few University professors who joined us.
I remember singing "Oh, you can't get to heaven with Princeton High, 'cause Princeton High makes Princeton High."

I remember painting "Princeton High supports Life" on the walls of IDA as 2 friends drew 2 huge caricatures of "Tricky Dick" next to me.

I remember offering food to 2 policemen through the gate and him offering me water.

I remember sharing blankets and wine with friends as we bedded down for the night outside a gate at IDA.

I remember seeing a policeman spotlighted on the balcony as he swayed to the music of a marimba band.

I remember thinking how strange it was to see police behind bars as we smoked before them.

I remember watching smoke from fire
as it curled along the sky.

And then I remember falling asleep as someone clinked wine bottles in time with the band.

I remember waking up to the sound of Anny's bells as he walked along singing
"Rava," and hearing "Reverly" played on a trumpet at 5:00 the next morning.

I remember shaking burning ashes from a friend's blanket and sloring in amazement at a large charged hole in my own.

I remember the sting of dew on my bare feet as I ran across the ground in search of a bathroom.

I remember being called a "deserter"
by a trusted friend of mine and yelling that he was a "hypocrite."

I remember nearly falling into Cook's arms as we both apologized, crying, trying to think of ways to help the school situation.

I remember pacing the floor outside the main office and smoking a pace of Marlboro's and then silently crying as I heard the decision to end the strike.

I remember feeling like I wanted to kill the first person who crossed me when I thought about "school policy."

I remember hearing the words "Don't worry about the print at the bottom of the ballot, it's meaningless."

I also remember hearing the phrase "back to business as usual" and looking down at bleeding knuckles which had struck a locked door.

I remember walking out of class in embittered protest at being called an "adolescent,"
one of many who called for a strike
in a moment of "hysteria."

I remember sitting in the English Office thinking about that speech and not being able to cry.

But most of all, I remember the agonizing realization that I really had no power.

ARSON

I might have been lying there half awake for a while, or simply sleeping. I can't quite remember.

The first siren broke the silence of night, arousing me from my rest. Its spasms were soon joined by those of another one. I lay on my bed, listening to the sound of the sirens rising and receding and rising again, filling the night. How many others in the sleeping town must have been listening as I was in their beds with eyes wide open! And maybe they, too, could feel their pulse rising by instinct, an instinct formed by too many common memories, memories of words and stories, of books and newspapers, of figures and family tales, half forgotten memories of yesterday and today brought back by sirens in the night. What did they mean, these sirens? I felt an urge to get up and go to my window. But the sirens' howls swelled one last time, faded and did not come back. Relieved I sank back into sleep.

NORTHERN PIKE

An American hatter flew silently over the rippling green reeds, the Canadian sun was shining. My family were fishing above the little Mississippi, a lovely stream in Ontario, Canada.

Our three lines were propped against the railing of the small bridge, the bald, live ramsons, swimming in the deep cool water. Although we were fishing for Northern Pike, we had only caught one large-mouth bass.

Suddenly, a red and white bobber, which had been inactive, began furiously bobbing. Grabbing the old rod, I set the hook and began to reel the line in. There seemed to be a very heavy fish at the end of the line.

There was a sudden surge of water, and a glossy, dark green fish, speckled with large, irregular white spots, broke the calm surface of the water. The line, old and used, snapped under the sudden strain. In a mass of frothing water, the enormous fish disappeared into the depths of the river.

The only Northern Pike we had ever encountered had returned to its natural element.

MAYBE

Beyond the fog and rolling waves I can make out an island in a ball's path to reach it.

Hoping, maybe knowing that Possibly it's not like the rest Maybe it's an island of peace May be an island of hope But not like the rest

Yes, I think I've found my home I think I've found my life And a penny for you, Charan.

To do with Cambodia (somewhat)

Someone was staring at me. I adjusted the lines in my hair and the beads on my legs and chest.

and then I checked my white T-shirt with the red list printed on front and back.

And my red arm band was still there I had put it. And then I started back.

Our Purple Mountains' Majesty

As his bullet-proof car goes by thousands guns will shoot As his shoes are robbed and pillaged A thousand hands will loot.

As boys turn into men They learn that white is right. As men turn into boys They're screaming, "with a sight."

And after all is finished away And life is just no more. Maybe we will realize It was even less before.

A BOOK

I'm a strange contradiction: I'm new and I'm old. I'm often in laters and at deck'd in gold: Though I never could read, yet letter d

I'm found; Though blind, I enlighten; though loose, I'm bound; I'm always in black, and I'm always in white:

I am grave and I'm gay, I am heavy and I'm light. In form too I differ, I am thick and I'm thin.

I've no flesh, and no bones, yet I'm covered with skin; I've more points than the compass, more stops than the flute in them, which

I sing without voice, without speaking conflict; I'm English, I'm German, I'm French, and I'm Dutch:

Some love me too fondly; some slight me too much; I often die soon, though sometimes live ages.

And no manure alive has so many pages. — Hannah More

MR. AND MRS. FRONTPORCH

The streets were the same, I couldn't make much out of them, and the houses presented the problem of having to figure out what was going on in them, which wasn't very interesting: down the street Mrs. D was waiting for the milkman and Mrs. D was preparing breakfast an hour too early, and the others, oh who cares.

A police car entered the other end of the street moving very slowly. As he drove past my house he looked at the other side of the street and stopped. There were two men in black with rifles, acting like sentries, pacing back and forth in front of the house. One of them saw the policeman and ran and banged on the door. Seconds later a whistle blew and I could hear someone saying.

"Hup two three four, hup two three four."

A group of men led by a man dressed in white with black gloves came marching out of the garage. The police officer got out of the car and looked at them, even I looked at them, as though they were crazy. They marched, about thirty of them, with the man in white giving the command of, "Column right and halt," up to the police man. Then the man in white screamed, "RIGHT FACE!"

and they all turned and faced the policeman. "What the hell is this," he said. The man in white turned and screamed, "Column two about face, to the rear, march."

The two men grabbed the policeman, who struggled violently to break away, screaming, "Let me go, let me go," but they held him against the car. The man in white ordered the others to form a line on each end of the car and fix bayonets. The policeman was still screaming frantically, and the man in white began to scream.

"You Pig. You murdering Pig. Did you think you could go on forever?" The policeman stopped screaming and the man in white walked up to him and spit in his face. "READY."

The men on the side of the road brought their guns diagonally to their chests, and the man in white screamed.

"Pig, Pig, Pig, Pig."

The policeman began to cry. "Oh God, what did I do? Oh God, what did I do? Please, mister, what did I do?"

"AIM."

The policeman cried more heavily. "I'm sorry, I'm sorry." The two privates released him and ran. The policeman looked up and threw his hands in front of him. "No, no, no."

"FIRE."

One by one the fifteen men began to fire their guns. It was the only sound to be heard was click, click, click, click, until the eighth man's gun went bang and the policeman stood screaming, half out of his mind. The ninth and tenth guns went click on up to the fourteenth gun, and the fifteenth went bang. The policeman fell.

I jumped and ran for the phone. "Operator, operator. Oh my God," and then I fell sorry.

"Mr. and Mrs. Frontporch, are you ready?"

WHEELS START TURNING
At St. Paul's School, Sister Gabriella, principal of St. Paul's School, has a faculty of eight nuns and 12 laymen getting ready for the first day of school about 400 pupils will attend St. Paul's this year.

The 7th and 8th grades will be introduced to a new program, earth science, by Mrs. Veronica L. Reuter, head of the science department. "Earth Science used to be taught in the first year of high school," Sister Gabriella said last week, "but it's now coming down into the grades." She noted that the school has a difficult time in deciding upon a text book, exclaiming, "Science books are outdated before they're printed!"

Tapes Aid Teachers. Grades 2 through 8 will be supplied with a new set of math tapes for independent work. Prepared by the 3M company with accompanying worksheets, the students will settle down with their pencils and earphones and progress at their own speed.

"It's really a great help for the teachers," Sister Gabriella comments. "Not all have taken math courses in the past few years. The tapes supplement our contemporary math program."

In September the whole school from second grade up will take the battery of Science Research tests, administered throughout the Town of Princeton. St. Paul's began giving the tests five years ago and has kept records of the results. Over the years the teachers can see what the child is achieving and where emphasis is needed.

There is some discussion of administering the tests in the late spring, Sister Gabriella remarked. "The teachers would get the results sooner. This would help in planning."

The summer months meant vacation for the St. Paul's pupils, but according to Sister Gabriella, most of the nuns attended special courses and workshops until the middle of August.

This meeting will be followed by staff meetings in each of the schools in the afternoon. New students may be enrolled at the principal's office in the Maurice Hawk, Plainsboro and Dutch Neck Schools weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Children who are being enrolled in school for the first time will need a birth certificate and immunization records. LAWRENCEVILLE TO OPEN

With New Fall Plans. This fall the Lawrenceville School will begin its 161st academic year with an enrollment of 681 students. Along with welcoming 228 new students and 12 new faculty members, the School will also see a number of additions to its curriculum and campus.

As a result of studies made by student and faculty on the Curriculum Committee, a new program of experience gained in the School's Summer Session, Lawrenceville will institute revision in its course offerings for fifth formers (seniors) this year.

By consolidating course material in the fall and winter terms, larger blocks of time will be free in the spring term for students' off campus projects, social service work, independent study, and work study.

programs. A wider range of electives will also be available this year.

For the campus, construction is now beginning on a new central dining room to handle the first through fourth floors. The new building, estimated at a cost of $1.5 million has been made possible through a gift to the School's Program '73. Now, a long-range effort to secure major capital gifts for Lawrenceville.

While plans of curriculum and campus changes continue, the addition of girls to the institution has not been included. A committee conducted a study a year ago on the advisability of co-education; trustees have been evaluating and testing the committee's findings for several months, but Lawrenceville, for the present, will retain its single-sex distinction. Speculation and discussion about the co-ed question have been lively in recent months. Students strongly favor having girls on campus, but alumni, parent and faculty opinion is divided.

for Steve Sikora (6.3, 225) is a fixture after a great sophomore year. The pick of the sophomores, Steve Hausmann (6.1, 190), will spell him unless he is switched to the other side of the line, where here is a vast hole following the graduation of all Ivy Jim Nixon and the unavailability through injury of John Halden. Seeking this spot are three juniors, Norm Townsend the biggest at 6.3, 265, Jim Graf and Jim Green.

Tackles: One of the top sophomores may now win the job on the right side of the offensive line by default, inasmuch as senior letterman John Rogge has decided not to play football this fall. In his absence, the leading candidate for the job is 6.2, 225 lb. Jeff Bartoszewicz, one of the best linemen up from last year's freshmen. He'll bat tie for the spot with an even bigger junior, 6.1, 250 lb. Ken Leucyzyk.

The other starting tackle is likely to be senior Dave Dirks, (6.1, 267) who saw considerable action last year as the immediate replacement for Ed Gandolfi. He will have to be good enough to beat out Dick Williamson (5.11, 211), a converted end who won a letter in '68 but was hurt last fall. Added depth comes from junior Paul Ondrask, no more than 5.11 but 226, and sophomore Bill Brown (6.2, 210), last year's freshman starter.

There are as many as eight players who will try to fill the defensive tackle berths held down so well by Tom Hutchinson and Alley Bob Hess. On the left side of the line, two varsity holdovers senior Chuck Dresel (6.1, 223) and junior John O'Donovan (6.3, 225) may not be able to beat out a fine sophomore, 6.4, 245 lb. Carl Barsick. Another sophomore, 6.1, 200 lb. Kim Klinker, is the fourth man here.

At the other tackle, the quartet battling for starting honors are a junior, 6.6, 242 lb. Ed Marshall, and three sophomores, Bob Campbell (6.3, 244), John Ray (6.2, 213), and Pat Shannon (6.3, 210). The gaps in the defensive line left by the departure of Hess, Hutchinson and Nixon prompt McCullough to say, "I think that while we're rebuilding, the other teams don't thrive and four yield us to death."

Linebacks: Despite the graduation of both starters on offense (Dan White and Alley Mike Guern), hopes are that junior Emil Delore (6.1, 199) and senior Steve Sauer (6.3, 220) can step right in. Both have strong promoters. Sauer can make a big difference if he has an injury-free year for the first time in the last three.

Beyond Delore is the start for last year's freshmen, 6.6, 196 lb. Larry McCafferty. Two other sophomores, Steve Curtis (6.1, 202) and Paul Valenti (6.3, 196) rank behind Sauer.

Adults, hard on defense is one of the best-stuffed positions on the entire team, so much so that of the two added there, one could be switched to bolster the platoon elsewhere. First in line is senior Art Fille (6.8, 185), a year's regular. Behind him are junior Phil Barbacid (6.1, 215), a player of considerable ability, and then the 1973 freshman captain, 6.6, 195 lb. Joe Parsons. None of them seems destined to do much bench warming.

Centers: Here, too, there is more than adequate personnel. Senior Kirk Laddell (6.3, 210), will fill the spot at which he started last fall, backed by juniors Dave Kimmiller (6.2, 224) and Tom Ward (6.4, 210), and the top sophomore, 6.6, 213 lb. Jim Sauray.

Quarterbacks: The four who will compete for the starting position have a total passing record on the variety of no completions out of one attempt. Rod Plummer, the 6.0, 195-lb. junior, was used sparingly behind MacBean and Holberg; the other three are sophomores. McCandless will pick from among Plummer, Tim Test—Continued on Next Page

erman (6-1, 174), John Love
Joy (6-1, 187), and Bob Wilson (6-1, 160). If Plummer shows he can pass, he may get the job on his speed as a runner, a quality McCandless feels is virtually essential to his type of T quarterback.

Halfbacks: As noted earlier, junior Hank Bjorklund
(5-1, 174) and senior Brian McCullough (6-0, 183) are good enough so that the backfield will be rearranged to get them in the lineup to gether. Bjorklund, fasted man on the team, had a fabulous day against Dartmouth, gaining 132 yards and scoring three times.

McCullough's total offense of 1,100 yards as a sophomore put him in a class with Dick Kazmauer and Royce
Phipps, but his junior year was shortened by two games
when he suffered a separated shoulder against Harvard.
Now fully recovered from the resultant operation, he is using his blockers to perfection and will, with Bjorklund and the quarterback, give the Tigers three members of the starting backfield who can pass.

Behind Bjorklund are three sophomores, Bill Lewis, Ed
Preston and Willie Williams.
The veteran Pete Hauke (6-2, 194) a two year letterman, will back up McCullough at quarterback with three sophomores also available there.
Among them is Larry Choilet, whose uncle, Hilary, was once a star at Cornell.

Fullbacks: You could give the job to sophomore Bill Early (5-10, 196) hands down except for the fact that he has a tough, capable competitor in Doug Blake (6-0, 196), a letter-winner as a sophomore. Both will be good through the middle but Early has extreme speed to the outside and broken field abilities few fullbacks ever show. He seems destined for stardom well before he graduates.

Gary Shapiro, a javayee last year, and sophomore John Hagenbuch are other fullbacks the squad, in both depth and potential, it ranks as one of the strongest on the 1970 roster.

Kickers: Among the regulars, Brian McCullough and Hank Bjorklund are punters, as is reserve back Greg Magee. Sophomore Jim Antal, a sucker-style placekicker, will succeed Arnie Halberg on the p.a.t.'s. Chris Montgomery will handle the kickoffs for the third year in a row.

Linebackers: Along with middle guard, this is the only well-stuffed position on the defensive platoon. Captain Dennis Burns (6-0, 204) heads the talented personnel, which also includes letterman Peter Boyle (6-1, 205) and several promising varsity holdovers and sophomores. Among them are junior Tim Howard (6-0, 202), plus Dave Harding
(6-0, 200) and Tom Harthi (6-1, 206) up from last year's freshmen. Harthi, a real corner, could become a defensive tackle.

Cornerbacks and Safety-

No Disruption Expected

While no estimate of the trends that campus unrest will take can claim to be infallible, the guess here is that Princeton's 1970 football season will not be adversely affected in measurable degree.
McCandless has said that his players will be in the line of the start of practice in Blairs-town to commit themselves to a full season of football once they report for action.

"We will tell them," Mc-Candless said, "that if they want to be a part of the squad, only their families and their studies should take precedence over football as long as the season lasts."
There is reason to believe that the high degree of pur-posefulness, combined with mutual respect among players and coaches here, will achieve that end this fall.

men: There are three lettermen — Bernie Barrett (6-1, 187), Jeff Davis (5-11, 163), and Bruce Corcoran (5-10, 170), as well as several varsity reserves and some promising sophomores. The former group includes Bob Wolfe, Bob Schuster and John Utam, all juniors. First-year varsity men in the pictures are Mike Kincald, Dave Thompson, Barry Richardson, Mike Hincewicz and Kevin English.

MIDGET FOOTBALL SET

For New Season Action. The Princeton Midget Football League will kick off its sixth fall season with bigger plans than ever. In addition to the former teams, a new team is being organized to accommodate the increasing number of young people in Princeton who are interested in playing football.

The new team, to be sponsored by the Bag and Furniture Mart, will join the Junior Division, which currently consists of teams sponsored by J. P. Cleaver Co., First National Bank, Hilton Realty Co.
and a fourth in need of a sponsor.

The Senior Division will gain consist of four teams, three of which will continue under the sponsorship of Nassau Converter Motors, Princeton Fuel Oil Co. and the Princeton University Store; the fourth sponsor is being sought by league officials. Also following next year's schedule, the Senior Division teams will play a six-game intramural set on Sunday afternoons, while the five team Junior group will each play four games on Saturday mornings. All teams will be fully equipped and uninformed by the League through the help of donors.

All those interested in playing midget football must reg-

25 years in the making.

We'd like to thank the makers of the other new economy cars for giving us such a nice head start.
It gave us time to develop an inspection system so meticulously scrupulous that it expects every VW to pass 16,000 examinations.

It allowed us to find out just a reasonably scientific peck how we could double our horsepower without doubling the cost of your horsepower.
(The VW still gets about 26 miles to the gallon and requires only a smidgen of oil.)

It permitted us to work on things that didn't even have to do with the actual making of the car.
Medi-car, the Volkswagen Diagnosis System, for example. Electronic equipment that can spot trouble in a car before it gets to be trouble. When you buy a new VW, you get 4 free Medi-car checkups.

Of course, it took great fortitude to resist squandering our time on phony styling improvements.

The beetle looks just so good for bad as it did 25 years ago.

Three playoff games to determine the champion of the senior division of the Princeton Youth Baseball Association will be held Sunday on Scrubing Field at the corner of Fitz Randolph and College Roads.

At 9 a.m., Sodeman New York Life will oppose Princeton Bank and Trust. At 11, it will be PBA versus Thorne's and at 4, the winners will meet for the divisional championship.

At 10 Saturday morning, a junior division All Star game will be held at Marquand Park. The contest pits Engine No. 3, league champions in the 9-12 division, against an all star team comprised of league players.

played on a senior team last year will be re-assigned to teams. Last year's junior division players will be assigned to the Senior tryout group, if they are eligible, or be re-assigned to their former team.

TWO FROM HERE, COMPETITORS FROM THERE

In AAU Swimming Championships, Jane Freeman and Dan Golden found out what it was like to swim with the best last week, when they competed in the AAU National Swimming Championships in Los Angeles.

Nine world records and 10 U.S. marks were set at the meet. Swimming in the 100-meter freestyle, Miss Freeman placed 21st out of 57 competitors, with a time of 1:02.7. Two weeks ago she placed third on the Eastern Championships in Lancaster, Pa. In 1961, A. Jane graduate of Princeton High School, she will enter Princeton University next month. For the past year she has been affiliated with the Short Aquatic Club in Sea Bright.

Golden swam in the 100-meter butterfly, for which he qualified in an official time of 1:01.4 at the Princeton Community pool two weeks ago. His time at Los Angeles was 1:00.9.

He will enter the sophomore class at Princeton University in September, and will be a member of the varsity swimming team.

Miss Freeman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Freeman, 311 Western Way. Golden is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Golden Jr., 707 Kingston Road. They are the first two residents of Princeton to work their way up from local, state and regional swimming meets to the national championships for senior swimmers, a fine achievement in itself.

TEAGUE VS. CONTE

In Southall Hall it will be best of three between Conte's Bar and Teague, a one-hands for the playoff championship of the Princeton Adult Southall League.

The games were scheduled this week at Community Park with a playoff if necessary Wednesday evening starting at 6:15. Conte's league champions for the second straight year, lost to Teague and Hinds in the playoffs' final round last year, two games to one.

Conte's advanced to the finals by defeating Nassau Conover Motors, 9-4, and 14-2. Dick Fowler, Conte's mainstay, won the mound all season, hurled both wins. Teague and Hinds also swept its best of three series with Ivy Inn, 5-1 and 5-3.

THREE ASSISTANTS NAMED

To Aid with Junior Tennis. The YMCA and the Recreation Department have named three staff members of the Princeton Community Tennis Program to help conduct the series of junior tennis tournaments scheduled to begin Tuesday, September 8.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jarecki and Miss Karen Fitzpatrick are assisting with the planning stages, while Scott Early, a senior at Princeton University who worked with John Conroy's advanced Gold Cup this summer, will be the referee on duty at Community Park each afternoon to run the draw.

The 16 and under division starts September 8 at 3:30 at Community Park.

And in Hamilton Township. Where we're going to break ground for a new building which will house equipment for Expanded Direct Distance Dialing, the service which adds speed and convenience to Long Distance Calling.

And in Trenton. Where we're opening a State Service Center to serve the State of New Jersey more efficiently.

And in Keyport, Middletown, Red Bank, Long Branch, Brick Township, Point Pleasant, Toms River, Medford, Willingboro, Burlington, Ewing Township, Trenton and Freehold. Just some of the places where we're enlarging our central offices or installing new equipment to keep ahead of spiraling communications needs.

And, wherever it's feasible, we're burying massive amounts of new cable for better protection and to make your neighborhoods look nicer.

It's all part of the $265 million we're spending on new construction throughout the state during 1970. And it's all to serve you better. In the busy year we're going through. And in the busier ones to come.

BEDENS BROOK PROS WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

Bedens Brook Country Club golf pro Joe Sarro (left) and his assistant, Dave Alampi, survived a three team sudden-death playoff to win the New Jersey Pro-amateur championship trophy and $500 first prize money last week at the Metuchen Country Club.

Alampi rolled in a birdie putt from five feet to enable the pair to secure a three on the first playoff hole, a 400-yard par four. A fine second shot with a seven-iron put Alampi within five feet of the hole.

At the end of 18 holes, Sarro and Alampi were double-bok with Pat Schwab, State PGA champion and assistant Chuck Courtney of Crestmont and Ray Fabe and Bob Glanzen of Colonia. All three had a best-ball score of 66.

Pike Brook's Art Silverstone and Bob Barker finished a shot of the pace with a 67, while the first club's team of Monty Norcross and Ben Unger and former New York Yankee pitcher Ralph Terry and Gary Stasak shot 68s.

pect for the events that two place there.

Unhappily, most citizens of Princeton have taken for granted that any encroachment such as the proposed housing project by the Institute for Advanced Study would be unthinkable, especially at this time when so many communities throughout the country are becoming concerned with preserving and restoring their historical landmarks.

I quote Prof. William Thompson's urgent question in TOWN TOPICS, August 20: "Cannot the Institute find an other suitable tract on the approximately 40 acres of land it owns?"

GAYNETH K. BROWN

Mrs. Joseph Brown, 31 Edwards Place

ETS gave an indication it would be a tough opponent for McGraw Hill, which had breezed through most of its earlier games, when it beat the division leader, 9-8, in the final game of the regular season.

Behind by a run in the final inning, ETS double-kick the contest at 8-6 on a double, followed by an infield out and a sacrifice fly by Bill Degler. Singles by Jerry Kramer and Ed Masons plus an error brought in the winning run an inning later. Jerry Murphy had four hits.

In the first playoff game, McGraw Hill squeaked by with a 10-9 triumph in a rather tight inning affair, but ETS came back in the second game to score a 14-4 victory, with seven runs in the first inning. Kramer held McGraw Hill to eight hits, while Jim Jackson, Willie Turner, Sam Zaccarelli and John Barone all contributed three safeties.

FMC, which had held on to second place most of the season behind McGraw Hill, survived a 16-8 thumping by Accelerator in the first game of its semifinal series, and captured the next two contests, 7-6, and 6-2.

RCA A must have worn itself out chasing NCA for the division title during the regular season, which it finally won in the final game, with an 18-11 victory over Cities Service. John Meyer was five for five with five RBIs. RCA A won its last seven contests, before meeting RCA Astro in the playoffs.

Cities Service and NCA split the first two playoff games, with Cities Service winning the first, 7-6, but dropping the second, 13-2.

HOLE-IN-ONE SUNDAY

Sponsored by PBA, a color television set is waiting for the person who comes closest to the pin in the annual Hole in One Contest this Sunday, sponsored by Patrolmen's Benevolunary Championship held in Philadelphia.

Miss Lapidus was selected as one of the entrants in this tournament on the basis of her extensive local victory score and her top ranking in the Middle States last year. In last week's competition, which comprised the top 50 girls of age 18 or lower in the country, she met the number one player from Florida in the first round and lost 6-2, 8-1.

Undaunted, and with another year of junior competition ahead, Miss Lapidus hopes to try again for a more successful score in this division of girls junior tennis.

ETS BEATS MCGRAW HILL

In Division Semi Finals, in one of the major upsets of the Business Softball League Educational Testing Service knocked defending champion McGraw Hill out of the post-season playoffs with a 3-2 victory Monday night in the rubber contest of a three-game semi final series.

Winner of seven of its last eight regular season games, ETS is now playing FMC, which defeated Accelerator, in the finals of the eastern division. RCA Astro also secured an upset, when it knocked off RCA A two straight. Cities Service, which topped NCA 2-4, in their third game, is fighting Astro in the Western Division. The two winners will meet next week for the championship of the Business Softball League.

BUSINESS In Princeton

FOUNDED IN DEPRESSION

Ballot's Still Thrives. Harry Ballot opened a men's clothing store on Witherspoon Street just 40 years ago in spite of the business recession. He stocked it with a little of this, a little of that. It was a time when men's shirts were $1.95 and a good jacket was $35.

Today, Harry Ballot's is the center of a far-flung network of customers and friends of customers in all parts of the world. Harry Ballot himself died in November 1962, and the business is now owned by his widow, who lives in Palmer Square, and by his brother-in-law, Abram Wendroff, a member of the firm since 1932. Another Harry, Harry Wyckoff, is co-manager with Mr. Wendroff, and has been with Ballot for some 16 years.

"Originally, this was a student's store," Mr. Wendroff comments. "But today, with conditions as they are, the student trade is very small—as you can guess! In 1933, every person who walked into the store was a student."

We're very sorry we don't have him as a customer now, but we feel he'll come back and buy our clothes. We think that the mode of dress of youth today will change, that they'll come back to the old Ivy League suit or jacket.

Harry Ballot's Princeton customers today are faculty members, businessmen and professionals. "But our Princeton business is very small compared to our out of town business—and this comes in from all over the world," Mr. Wendroff says. "While we're not the biggest business in the town, we feel we are closer to our customers than most stores can say, because we keep in touch with them either by phone or by card, or by letter."

It was in 1912 that Harry Ballot came to Princeton to visit his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kaplan. He stayed on, went to school here, and worked after school in his uncle's clothing store. "He learned the business from the ground," says Mr. Wendroff. "Then he went into business for himself, starting from scratch. Soon after that, he married my sister, and in 1932 moved the store to 20 Nassau Street."

Policies Unchanged. The policies that Harry Ballot established are still in effect. A customer is a friend. There's a record of his sizes, his purchases, and their dates on a large 3x3 card in the Ballot files. The records are changed when he moves, gains or loses weight, even the name of his current wife is noted.

When a batch of sport coats come into the store, Harry Wyckoff thumbs his cards and reaches for the phone, sending out an alert. "Why don't you stop in and see them..."

"When a man in St. Louis gets a suit, he usually tells us whether he has lost a size or gained one," Mr. Wendroff explains the system. "I have a suit going to San Francisco to-day. We spoke to our friend there on the phone and he says he's the same size—A man in Ridgewood will call in and say he needs a new jacket to take along on his vacation. 'What do you have?'"

"A lot of our business is word of mouth," Mr. Wendroff goes on. "We had a man here at noontime who bought three suits. A friend of ours sent him in. We've found over the years that keeping in touch with our customers is very important. You feel they have never left you."

A customer wrote to Harry Ballot just recently from a camp in Maine: "Evidently I left my raincoat home... what do you have that's not too expensive and that I can use in camp? Everybody likes the jacket I brought from you."

"So," Mr. Wendroff winds up 10 years of the Harry Ballot method, "we checked his card and then sent him a raincoat. It wasn't too expensive—$17.50."

ADR WINS FROM IBM. Settlement Worth $1 Million. Out-of-court settlement of a suit brought by Applied Data programming firm.

John R. Bennett, ADR president, said that IBM has agreed to pay $14 million in reimbursement for costs his firm incurred as a result of the giant computer-manufacturing company's policies as a competitor. Applied Data has sued to block IBM from distributing certain computer programs to its customers without charge.

In addition, Mr. Bennett said, the two companies are studying a business relationship which would call for ADR to supply IBM with Autolow, a computer program which ADR designed. When completed, such an arrangement will result in revenues to Applied Data of at least $500,000 over a three-year period.

A subsidiary of ADR, Programatics Inc., took similar action in withdrawing its suit against IBM. The two suits were initiated in the spring of 1969, and are the first of four to be settled, all of them charging IBM with — Continued on Next Page monopolistic practices and anti-competitive pressures in the field of computer programming.

Autoflow, a program which directs a computer to make printed flow charts of other computer programs, was a central point of the suit against IBM. Applied Data charged that it had spent $1 million to develop Autoflow and that IBM was unfairly interfering with its marketing.

Announcement of the settlement in Applied Data's favor had an immediately bullish effect on its stock. Traded on the American Exchange, it had reached a low of 3 1/4 early in the week, but moved up 1 5/8 on the news and closed Friday at 6 3/8.

Originally issued at 5 and one half in 1965, it later split 3 for 2 and reached an all-time high of close to $60 a share. The stock market slide and its own operations in the red have since driven the value sharply downward. Several weeks ago, however, the firm announced that after further losses during the first four months of 1970, it had reversed the trend and had shown a small profit during May and June.

BASE TEN NET RISES

For First Half of 1970, Base Ten Systems has reported a profit of $6,138 or two cents a share for the first six months of this year, compared to a loss of $76,938 on sales of $39,677 or 30 cents a share for the corresponding period a year ago.

The firm's sales for the same period, $98,213, were almost double that for the first half of 1969. Backlog as of June 30 was approximately $625,000.

The difference in financial results, between 1969 and 1970, is due primarily to a growth in sales in both operating divisions within a comparable growth in overhead or administrative costs. M. M. Krantzler, president and chairman of the board, reports.

PRINCETON EASES RULES

For Women on Faculty. With a marked increase in appointments of women to its Faculty, Princeton University has interpreted and revised Faculty rules and practices to permit women more easily to assume faculty positions. The principal adjustments are a part-time professional appointments and an optional delay in tenure decisions as a result of pregnancy.

Part-time appointments in the professional ranks are a somewhat more regular, though limited, basis. It will now be possible for a woman to be appointed on part-time service in a professional rank with all the perquisites usually accompanying the rank, including tenure. Proposals for regular part-time appointment or shifts between part-time and full-time service will be viewed in the light of the individual's circumstances and the department situation.

News Of The CHURCHES

SUPPLIERS QUERIED
By Princeton Seminary.
About 200 suppliers of goods and services to Princeton Theological Seminary have been asked by William E. Lawder, Seminary treasurer, to indicate their willingness to sign a supplier commitment for Project Equality of New Jersey, Inc.

Project Equality, based in Newark, is backed by the Episcopal dioceses of Newark and New Jersey, the New Jersey Baptist Convention, the New Jersey Council of Churches, the New Jersey Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, the Roman Catholic dioceses of Camden, Paterson, Trenton, the Archdiocese of Newark and the Byzantine Catholic Diocese of Passaic, and the United Methodist northern and southern New Jersey conferences.

Princeton Seminary, according to Mr. Lawder, has been asked by Project Equality to participate in the church and synagogue - developed program designed "to utilize the hiring and purchasing power of religious institutions to end employment discrimination in their own institutions and in the firms which supply them with goods and services."

Results of the inquiry will be forwarded to the Seminary trustees for consideration at their October meeting, when a decision concerning the Seminary's participation in Project Equality will be made.

Seminary Suppliers Project, Mr. Lawder points out in his letter to suppliers that the Seminary "fully supports the aims and goals of this program, and has a personnel policy which states that Princeton Theological Seminary is an equal opportunity employer and that the Seminary offers equal employment opportunities as well as the same opportunity for advancement regardless of race, color, sex or creed."

Project Equality is compiling a classified directory of participating suppliers. Its policy asks that all firms "devoting to do business with universities, congregations, schools, hospitals, retirement homes, and other affiliated institutions make a formal commitment to employment practices that will offer equal opportunities for employment and job advancement to Negroes, Mexican Americans, Puerto Ricans, Cubans, Orientals, American Indians, Jews and other minority groups irrespective of race."

creed or color." The Seminary's present policy also offers equal opportunities regardless of sex.
